FOREWORD.

SVEN BLUSCH, HEAD OF BMW MOTORRAD MOTORSPORT.

Dear media representatives, dear friends of motorcycle racing,

Winning the title with Toprak Razgathoğlu in the 2024 FIM Superbike World Championship was a milestone for both BMW Motorrad Motorsport and the entire BMW Group. This success has fuelled our motivation as we head into the 2025 season, with a clear goal: to defend the title. We have gone from being the hunters to the hunted. It's a great feeling, but we also know that everything resets to zero and the battle will be even tougher. In the FIM Endurance World Championship, our objective for the new season is just as clear: to fight for the world championship. This title holds immense value for us as well.

Our factory commitments in WorldSBK and FIM EWC represent the pinnacle of our extensive motorsport activities. But BMW Motorrad Motorsport is much more than that. Our foundation is customer racing, with our privateer teams achieving success across the globe. Additionally, we are involved in factory-supported motorsport and collaborate with teams in series such as the British Superbike Championship and MotoAmerica, as well as in road racing, including legendary events like the Isle of Man TT.

With this interactive media guide, we would like to introduce you to the BMW Motorrad Motorsport season 2025. In addition to information and facts about our racing programmes and the new BMW M 1000 RR, you will find links to extensive video interviews, which are available for you to use freely.

I wish you an exciting motorcycle racing season in 2025!

"Our goal for the new season is to see Toprak and Michael both competing for the podium. Clearly, Toprak has the ambition to be a three-time world champion, and hopefully he can succeed in doing that with us in 2025. In addition to that, our challenge this year will be to win the riders' as well as the manufacturers' championship."

THE BMW M 1000 RR 2025.

THE BMW M 1000 RR 2025.

The new production version of the BMW M 1000 RR was launched last autumn and serves as the foundation for the race bikes in WorldSBK and FIM EWC. The new model features an enhanced engine with increased performance, while aerodynamics have been further refined with the generation 3.0 winglets. The electronics package and chassis components have also been optimised.

Christian Gonschor, Technical Director BMW Motorrad Motorsport, explains: "The 2025 M 1000 RR is the perfect foundation for our motorsport activities. The base engine now delivers six more horsepower, providing an excellent platform for performance development in both World Superbike and endurance racing engines. We can translate the performance gains from the production model directly to the race bike. And of course, a powerful engine adds to the joy of riding. Combined with the generation 3.0 winglets, which have to be adopted one-to-one according to regulations, riders can steer into corners with even greater precision and agility while maintaining their line when accelerating out."

A key role in development is played by the BMW Motorrad WorldSBK Test Team: "It allows us to complete our engineering and technical homework in advance. This way, we arrive well-prepared at race weekends and no longer need to test parts during FP1 on Friday. Instead, the race team can fully focus on racing, the riders, and lap times. That is a huge advantage."

Bike-Video: click here.

"There are many shared components between a Superbike and an endurance motorcycle, creating numerous synergies. This makes things very clear and straightforward for the engineers, and all the more satisfying for the riders to be competitive in both championships with the M 1000 RR."

THE GLOBAL RACING FAMILY OF BMW MOTORRAD MOTORSPORT.

BMW Motorrad Motorsport is actively engaged in racing worldwide with a comprehensive commitment. Over the years, a large international racing family has grown, celebrating success across the globe. While the factory programmes in WorldSBK and FIM EWC stand at the pinnacle of these efforts, customer racing forms the heart and broad foundation.

Year after year, private BMW riders and teams achieve victories in various championships worldwide. They are supported globally by the expert network of BMW Motorrad Race Support, benefitting from the experience and developments gained in the factory programmes of WorldSBK and FIM EWC.

In addition to securing the WorldSBK riders' championship, BMW racers claimed no fewer than twelve additional titles in 2024 across key international and national championships in Europe, North and South America, Asia, and Australia. Their impressive track record also includes 142 race wins and 229 further podium finishes across various Superbike and Superstock classes.

In international road racing, BMW riders and teams have also been among the absolute top contenders for many years. In 2024, they secured 1-2 finishes in all three 1000cc races at the legendary Isle of Man Tourist Trophy. Peter Hickman continued his Isle of Man success streak with a win in the Superbike TT, while Davey Todd celebrated his first IoM victory in the Superstock TT and went on to claim the prestigious Senior TT title. Road racing will remain a key focus for BMW Motorrad Motorsport in 2025.
